A mission statement communicates the organization's reason for being, and how it aims to serve its key stakeholders. Customers, employees, and investors are the stakeholders most often emphasized, but other stakeholders like government or communities (i.e., in the form of social or environmental impact) can also be discussed. 4.3 The Roles of Mission, Vision, and Values - Principles ... The mission of missions is primarily spiritual. I hope we can agree that the church should especially care about eternal suffering. The church is that unique gospel community chartered by Jesus Christ himself. Consequently, it should especially labor to fulfill its unique mission to guard the gospel, proclaim the gospel, and disciple those who respond in repentance and faith to the gospel. 10 Things You Should Know about Missions and the Local ... Mission statements are a way of making this clear. They cut through the noise and get straight to the heart of your company's passion and vision. Exciting, energetic mission statements show the public your company's dedication and determination. They form a vital aspect of your communications. What Is a Company Mission Statement and Why Is It Important? A mission statement is a sentence or short paragraph that defines the existence of a business, nonprofit, government organization, or any other entity. Mission statements get at the heart of why a company exists, rather than how it exists. In other words, a mission statement isn't a business plan that explains how the entity will turn a profit; it's a statement that defines the motivation for trying to turn a profit in the first place. Mission Statement: What Is It? Internet Archive BookReader Things as they are; mission work in southern India Things as they are; mission work in southern India Both statements are important for your small business, but they are not one and the same. One way to look at the difference is that a mission statement is grounded in the present, and a vision statement involves the future. A mission statement explains the company's purpose by describing what it does, why it does it and how it does it.
