tile makes the room (particularly the black and white geometric tiles just below) and ideas are bouncing around in my brain — now to just let them out! good reads: heath's tile makes the room. | sfgirlbybay Yes, using really small tiles can also solve the purpose of making a room visually bigger. While for larger tiles, vision plays the trick, so it does for small tiles. Looking at teeny tiles fitted perfectly well in a space, the brain is forced to think how so many tiles fit into the space, therefore involuntarily looking at the space as bigger. TILE SIZE AND VISION: HOW TO MAKE SMALLER SPACES LOOK BIGGER Believe it or not, very small tiles – such as glass or stone mosaic – can make a room look large as well. Because the tile is small and the resulting grout pattern is very dense, it can take on a monochromatic look and be a very effective, alternative way to making your small room look bigger. Do Larger Tiles Tend to Make a Small Room Appear Big ... Blending the tile to the wall doubles your space in a small bathroom. Imagine tile with contrasting color in this shower pictured to the left. Visually, it would cut the size of the bathroom in half, making the shower appear to be a separate space. By blending the color / value of the tile with the wall, it will all read as one larger room.
